Life is full of surprises

Whether you are 18 or 89, don't risk being surprised by unexpected medical expenses from an illness or injury resulting in hospitalization.

Protect your savings

Even the best health insurance plans have cost-sharing features (or coverage gaps) that can leave you and your family with large medical bills. Coverage gaps in the form of co-pays and deductibles can quickly add up from a hospitalization.

Add up your medical plan's co-pays and deductibles to see where you may have exposure to unexpected expenses.

Hospital observation patients

Every year more Medicare beneficiaries enter hospitals as observation patients. Doctors order observation services to help decide whether to admit a patient to a hospital as an inpatient. During observation services, the patient is considered an outpatient. Which means that time does not count towards the 3-day inpatient hospital stay required for Medicare to cover a skilled nursing facility stay.

70% of hospital patients age 65 and older will require post-acute care such as in a skilled nursing facility.<sup>1</sup>

ER physicians, ambulance services, anesthesiologists, labs, and pathologists are just a few areas where unexpected expenses frequently occur.<sup>2</sup>

Could a hospital stay impact your savings?

Health care is constantly changing, and the costs are increasing. It's important to be prepared to support your health and well-being today and tomorrow.

The risks are real

Even those who lead a healthy and active lifestyle can be at risk of being diagnosed with a devastating illness or experience an unexpected accident. Survival and wellness rates continue to increase, while new treatments, solutions, and therapies continue to surface. For example, there are 16.9 million cancer survivors alive today.<sup>1</sup>
